

Earth Island Journal

2008 Editorial Calendar

Earth Island Journal has long been recognized as a cutting edge source of news, analysis, and commentary on the vital environmental issues of our time. Published quarterly since 1987, the Journal has won significant acclaim for its groundbreaking and thought-provoking coverage.

Issue	On Sale Date	Closing Date	Editorial Features
Spring 2008	3/15/2008	1/15/2008	Food and Agriculture This issue will focus on our food sources and the future of our agricultural system. We'll have news about how global trade rules and the international agribusiness systems are compromising the food security of some of the world's farming communities and undermining food sovereignty; an in-depth feature article that explores the evolving science about the nutritional benefits of organic food; and an investigative feature about the silent crisis of global soil erosion. ALSO an essay about the politics of protecting Korea's Demilitarized Zone, and a profile from Tom Turner on Earth Island Institute's 25 years of environmental activism.
Summer 2008	6/15/2008	4/15/2008	Travel and Transport This issue will feature an article about "congestion pricing" — a public policy that charges motorists more for driving into the city center — and its prospects for adoption in US cities; an investigate feature about the successful grassroots citizens campaign to reform cruise ship activities in Alaskan waters; a report about the ends-of-the-earth places scientists visit to study human-driven climate change. ALSO: An investigative feature about New Zealand's successful efforts to restore the population of its national bird, the kiwi;, and an investigative feature about efforts to protect a Unesco World Heritage Site in Belize.
Autumn 2008	9/15/2008	7/15/2008	Water Most recent climate change predictions indicate that melting glaciers and reduced precipitation could negatively affect water supplies around the world. How are governments coping with impending shortfalls in freshwater? How will this affect global politics?
